FINEST ARRAY OF THOROUGHBREDS AT HOME TRACK

Large Field Of Running Stars Already Entered For The Inaugural Handicap Opening Day

With the finest array of thoroughbreds ever assembled in Northern California, Tanforan opens its annual spring meeting today with the $2500 added Inaugural Handicap at six furlongs, headlining an outstanding program.

Among the stars expected to compete in the Inaugural are Boxthorn, Uppermost, Clean Out, Lady Bowman, Rushaway, Manners Man, Happy Bolivar, Cloud D' Or, Brown Jade, Mad Joss, Exhibit, Party Spirit, Happy Knot, Noble Count, Silk Mask, Exclaim and Lake View.

Racing Secretary Julius Reeder has arranged an exceptionally strong program for the opening of the 25-day spring season and all attendance records are in danger of being shattered.

The most pretentious lists of stakes yet scheduled at the historic San Bruno course has been arranged this season. The featured fixture, of course, is the first renewal of the $10,000 added Marchbank Handicap, April 17, which was won last year in world record time by Indian Broom.

Secondary on the stake list is a new fixture, the $5000 added Exposition Handicap, April 10.

The course is in perfect shape for the opening and the racing surface presents the best footing of any track in the United States. J. W. Marchbank, executive director of Tanforan, has insisted upon having the best racing strip in the country, and neither time nor expense has been

EARTHQUAKE IS FELT IN ENTIRE HARBOR REGION

Shock Is Strongest In San Francisco, Oakland And Area Of East Bay

An earthquake felt throughout the entire bay area aroused the people of San Mateo County at 2:32 o'clock Monday morning of this week. It rocked the peninsula from Palo Alto to the extreme northern limits.

The shock seems to have been strongest in San Francisco, Oakland, and particularly in the East Bay, but, according to official statement, no effect was perceptible on either the completed bay bridge or the Golden Gate structure. In Richmond and El Cerrito merchandise was shaken from shelves in stores, with similar results in some of the homes.

In northern San Mateo County nearly everybody was awoken by the tremor, which seemed to have a gentle, rocking east to west motion. It lasted two and a half seconds, but was not sufficiently violent to shake things from shelves or otherwise disturb property.

WINDOWS BROKEN

The earthquake rocked the San Francisco Bay region over a radius of 60 miles, shattering plate glass windows and mirrors and cracking chimneys. No casualties were reported.

Source of the shock was the old Hayward Fault line, running in a northerly direction from Santa Clara.

Flowers Planted Along Span Roads

More than 2,000 pounds of poppy and wild flower seeds have been planted along the approaches to the Golden Gate Bridge and over the Marin County hills and in the Redwood Empire in the beautification program being carried out for the Golden Gate Bridge fiesta.

The seeds were planted in order that the flowers might bloom during the period of the fiesta, from May 27 to June 2, and that the entrance and roads leading to the Golden Gate would be a mass of brilliant color.

Coming Down The Home Stretch

FIFTY MEN SPEED IMPROVEMENT WORK TO COMPLETION ON SEVEN MILES OF ROAD IN BRISBANE

New, Smaller Bridge Is Under Construction On Visitation Avenue And Surface Is To Be Lowered Eighteen inches

Fifty men and good weather are co-operating in Brisbane to push to rapid completion seven miles of road improvements. Grading is practically completed on five miles of main traveled streets, rock is being laid and rolled in preparation for a macadamized surface.

Two additional miles of roadway in the upper portion of the tract will be thoroughly graded. Engineer B. J. Taylor, superintendent of the WPA project, told the Sun-Tribune that work will be completed by May.

A power grader, caterpillar, roller, steam shovel and eleven trucks are employed on the $90,000 job. More than a dozen county men are supervising the work and operating equipment.

NEW BRIDGE

The old bridge on Visitation avenue has been torn out, and workmen are building a new, smaller structure which will span only the old pipe line. A solid earth fill will be made over the new Hetch Hetchy water main. A grade, eighteen inches lower than the former one, will be established over the new bridge.

In connection with the road project, the entire surface drainage system of the tract is being improved. Gutters are being cleared, widened and increased in depth in order to allow rain and seepage water to flow freely to the bay.

Bayshore League Dances Next Week

The Bayshore Voters League is sponsoring a grand ball at their hall, 125 Accacia street, Saturday evening of next week. The committee in charge invites everyone to attend this gala affair.

At 9 o'clock the music of Mel Lyons and his orchestra will start the ball rolling on one of the finest floors in the bay area, and at 10:30 o'clock a radio will be given away to some lucky patron. Refreshments will be served free. Dancing will continue till 1 a. m.

The sponsoring committee is Mrs. G. Anderson, chairman; W. L. Markt, H. Wright, J. P. Lawson, Mrs. J. Cox, Mrs. M. Coulter, Miss G. Lawson, Mrs. M. Hatch, Mrs. M. Bicker, J. Cash, A. R. Herrmann and H. Weinberg.

Tickets may be purchased from the committee or at the door.

New WPA Manager For S. M. County

Robert W. Mead recently assumed his new duties as acting San Mateo County WPA manager, succeeding Paul Birmingham, who went to the San Jose office. Transfer of Birmingham, who has been county WPA manager for the past ten months, was the result of a general retrenchment program, according to L. C. McAbee of San Jose, division supervisor.

Mead, former Burlingame resident, will have charge of Palo Alto city projects in addition to those for this county. Coincidentally with the transfer, it was announced that a general reduction in salaries of foremen, assistant foremen, clerks and other office workers had been effected.

Vagabond Sketches by DON AMES

Hitch hiking in itself may seem a simple, harmless act. Yet recent incidences show that motorists who extend courtesy to "free tourists" are flirting with danger.

A San Diego daily newspaper recently carried an account of an autoist who picked up a hitch hiker. The driver was commanded, at the point of a pistol, to proceed to San Diego. At that city he was robbed of all the cash he had on his person.

There are other instances of motorists who have been robbed, some murdered and scores whose vehicles have been commandeered. A natural conclusion is that it is not safe to give anyone a lift unless a driver can be reasonably sure of the hitch hiker's integrity.

County Valuation Up $10,000,000

Upon order of the State Board of Equalization assessed valuations for San Mateo County will be increased $10,000,000 for the coming fiscal year, the county assessor announced this week.

At the same time the assessor expressed belief that the increase in assessments may offset the tax boost which has been held inevitable by certain county officials.

Present assessed valuation of San Mateo County is $100,000,000. With the current increase a new high mark of $110,000,000 will be established as a property valuation.

The state is making a thorough check of all property with an aim of establishing tax levies on a basis of 50 per cent of the assessed valuations. State employees are surveying Federal Housing Administration loan valuations and the revenue stamps on all deeds filed at the office of the county recorder. In this manner they are working toward accurate valuations in all localities.

LONG AIR ROUTE

The longest north-south air route in the world will be completed this month when the Chilean National Airways inaugurates service from Santiago, Chili, to the tip of South America.

With United Air Lines handling the Los Angeles-Seattle section, the route will extend from near the Antarctic, through here, to the Pacific Northwest. From Seattle the route will continue by sea to Juneau, Alaska. Pan American has the Los Angeles-Canal Zone section and Pan American-Grace Airways carries on to Santiago.

BRIDGE OPENING IS TO BE MAJOR CITY OCCASION

Visitors From All Parts Of The World Will Attend Seven Day Fiesta

Another major event in the glorious history of San Francisco is only three months away and not all San Franciscans have yet awakened to the potentialities of the occasion.

On May 27 the Golden Gate Bridge will be thrown open to pedestrians and on the following day the wheels of motor traffic will begin a ceaseless spinning across the longest suspension span in the world.

ATTRACTIONS

Probably nowhere else on this planet is there to be found so powerful a magnet for seasoned travelers and wonder seekers as the dual attraction of colossal highways of the air across arms of beautiful San Francisco Bay—and San Francisco, so far, seems not the least bit excited over it.

Formal opening of the Golden Gate Bridge is to be celebrated by a seven day fiesta, in which all the Pacific Coast is to be invited to join.

San Francisco then will be hostess to many thousands of celebrants coming in caravans of motor cars from as far north as British Columbia, as far south as Mexico and over every road entering from the east.

Three months' time is none too much for San Franciscans to prepare for a Golden Gate Bridge fiesta to outclass any celebration ever held on this coast.

IT MUST BE BIG to match the bridge.

State Considers Bridge Purchases

The California Toll Bridge Authority was instructed by a resolution, recently passed by the State Senate, to investigate the feasibility of the state taking over the San Mateo and Dumbarton toll bridges, which cross the southern end of San Francisco Bay.

The measure followed passage of a resolution by the Hotel Greeters Association of America urging the Legislature to conduct an investigation of the possibility of buying and operating the Dumbarton, San Mateo-Hayward and Carquinez Bridges.

It has been pointed out that the low tolls of the San Francisco Bay bridges will work a hardship on the Carquinez span and those in the southern part of the bay region, making state ownership desirable if the public is to get good service without private investments being ruined.

EASTER SERVICES AT SUNRISE ATOP MOUNT DAVIDSON

More Than 50,000 Pilgrims Are Expected To Attend Annual Worship

Plans for the fifteenth annual Sunrise Easter Service at the cross atop Mount Davidson, highest peak in San Francisco, on Sunday, March 23, were announced this week.

The non-sectarian services are expected to attract more than 50,000 persons to worship on the mountain top on Easter morn.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE

In the last two years many permanent improvements have been made at Mount Davidson, a San Francisco city park, under a WPA project.

Pathways leading to the mountain summit have been widened and surfaced with fine gravel and the steep places have been relieved with stone steps. The concourse in front of the cross has been leveled and stone benches built for the comfort of weary pilgrims.

Trees have been trimmed so that the mountain top presents the appearance of a magnificent amphitheater, dignified with a mighty cross. Low shrubs and vines grace the ridge of new elevations, keeping the aspect wild but in a lovelier form. Noxious weeds have been sprayed and burned so that wild flowers will grow this spring in greater profusion from new seeds which have been planted.

The idea of Easter Sunrise Services at Mount Davidson was first conceived by James G. Decatur, an official of the Western Union, and was largely responsible for the erection of the first cross in 1923. A new concrete cross, 103 feet above the mountain crest, was erected in 1934 as a permanent monument.

MERCHANTS TAKE UP POLICE AND LIGHT PROGRAM

Drainage Of Storm Waters And Membership Considered By Brisbane Business Men

Launching earnestly into a program of civic improvement, the Brisbane Merchants Association, at their meeting Thursday evening of this week, struck on four major fronts and several minor ones.

Twelve members of the organization attended and pledged unanimous support to each project. Larry Southwick, who heads a committee to investigate to possibility of police protection for the community, reported that progress is being made and that the county authorities are lending him thorough co-operation.

Wilson reported that initial data had been compiled on the possible installation of street lights in Brisbane. Cost of installation was announced and a tentative spotting of the lights in the tract outlined.

A committee was appointed to interview the office of the district attorney and make an attempt to divert the Brisbane utility money, now held at Redwood City, into a fund which might be used to construct storm sewers in the tract.

Dick Anglasay was appointed chairman of a membership committee. He will invite all local business men to join the association. Mrs. Heywood, former secretary, resigned, her post, Jack Bratton was voted into the association as a new member.

Nevada May Cut Divorce Time

The floor leader of Nevada State Legislature this week declared that the state would answer a threat from Idaho to capture the easy divorce trade. He announced that a measure would be introduced requiring only a 30-day residence in the state.

"I'm sure it will pass," said the leader. "We have to do something to keep the divorce trade from going to Idaho."

Present requirement in Nevada to establish divorce residence is six weeks. This was matched last week by Idaho.

Training Camps of Other Seasons Leave Memories

TRAINING camp memories: The small town Chamber of Commerce orator whose ears probably are burning still. Because—at a dinner given in honor of the Giants—he referred to their manager as "the man very properly known to all the world as Muggsy." . . . The second, and even better, outburst several training seasons later. When John McGraw discovered that a former star, now no longer with the club, had inspired the orator to use the hated name. The year when Shanty Hogan reported thirty or forty pounds overweight and immediately was sentenced to hard labor and a diet containing no starchy foods. The Irish eloquence which Shanty used to persuade waitresses to bring him large orders of mashed potatoes and mark it on the check—always inspected by McGraw—as "Spinach."

Playing golf with Eddie Brannick. Wondering how a guy who could not putt and who continually drove in the rough whenever he managed to get the ball off the tee was managing to get pars on those far-flung San Antonio courses. The belated discovery that the tall grass was the Giants' secretary's best friend. Whenever he got into it he picked up the ball, wound up and hurled it onto the green. . . . Listening to Hughie Critz tell about the annual spring floods in his native Mississippi. And about the cabin which came floating by on the crest of the waters one day. While inside the cabin a screechy phonograph kept playing "River, Stay Away From My Door."

Babe Ruth's courteous co-operation with the press during a long series of one-day stands while the Yankees were knocking off the minor league teams of Texas and Oklahoma. The Yankees were world champions then, as now, but the Babe was the real attraction. After a day or two of monotonous, long dragged out, one-sided victories the reporters whispered to him. Promptly thereafter at the end of the seventh inning Ruth started signing autographs for fans who had overflowed the outfield. Naturally that brought the rest of the fans out of the grand stand on the run. Just as naturally it broke up the ball game and assured practically everybody, save the Babe and the fans, an early dinner.

The year when, with several training weeks left, a Baltimore paper ordered me to come home and cover the races. The discovery, after a thirty-six hour train trip, that the paper had changed ownership overnight. And that I had to take the next train back to the Orioles. . . . A talk late one night of that same spring with a native who lounged in front of a small Carolina town pool room. Wondering how the fellow, who otherwise looked, talked and acted like a hundred thousand other Crackers seen that spring, knew so many intimate things about baseball. The, quite accidental, discovery that this was Shoeless Joe Jackson, who only recently had been retired from organized baseball.

Early evening in St. Augustine when even the ancient ladies who inhabited the Ponce de Leon, the Alcazar and other Brahmin hotels abandoned their knitting. To come to the windows and listen for hours. While Bill Terry, Freddy Lindstrom, Jocko Conlon and a flock of others serenaded the town with close harmony. . . . Ox Eckhardt's genuine anguish when a storm hit Clearwater and he had to sit in the comfortable hotel. Wondering what was happening to the great dog, which he loved and which he had been forced to tie up in the flimsy Dodgers' clubhouse.

A before breakfast glimpse of a thick-chested youngster in the earnest midst of trying to persuade a hotel clerk that in spite of his stubbled beard and wrinkled clothes he belonged in the Cardinals' training quarters. The breakfast discovery that the youngster had lost his travel money and had ridden the rods on trains to get to camp on time. The belief, voiced in conjunction with several other early risers that, at some not very distant day, the National league was going to be very proud of this determined youngster. Seeing Pepper Martin play, for the first time, several hours later and being sure of it. . . . The—But this is another year.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

NEIGHBORS insist that Bill McKee is tired of managing the Boston Bees and would like to be elected tax collector in Wilkesburg, Pa. Bill, by the way, ran for the job years ago and missed. . . . Joe Louis' best baseball hero is Gerald Walker, Mississippi's delegate to the Detroit Tigers. . . . Eddie Mayo, the infielder traded to Boston by the Giants last fall, runs a milk route in his Clifton, N. J., home town. . . . One of the best three-game scores ever turned in by any bowler anywhere was achieved by Frankie Ratchford, a Lackawanna railroad blacksmith, two years ago. He totaled 854 pins.

Walter E. O'Hara, head man at the place, shortly will announce that, henceforth all unclaimed wagers at Narragansett Park will be turned over to charity. That is contrary to the custom at most tracks, where charity begins, and ends, in dividends or flamingoes. . . . In spite of strong rumors that Branch Rickey is the heir apparent to Judge Landis' $50,000 throne, friends of the Cardinal V. P. insist that he would spurn the job. They do say, though, he is mightily anxious to grab that Brooklyn club. But please don't write in to say that recent trades make it look like he already has it—as a St. Louis farm.

Six North Carolina State football players are reported by the Washington and Lee student paper to have gone on strike—because they were not sufficiently remunerated for their gridiron services. George Engle, who managed Frank Klaus and Harry Greb to middleweight championships, is writing a flock of entertaining boxing reminiscences for a Pittsburgh paper.

Bun Cook, who started the season as regular left wing for Boston, was demoted in a recent shakeup of the Bruin forwards. He became the fifteenth, or odd, man. Anyhow, Art Ross, who is planning to convert Defense Man Flash Hollet into a forward, will not farm Bun to Providence. Just doesn't believe the former Ranger would have much interest in performing in the minors. . . . Joe Minsavage, Syracuse end who will be graduated in June, recently had an operation performed on a gridiron-damaged nose. The result is that a Grecian model has replaced his well-known semi-flattened schnozzola. . . . Jockey Wayne Wright is a southpaw, which probably accounts for a lot of things. . . . While seeking a replacement for Roy Worters at goal Red Dutton would make no mistake in peeping at Mike Brimsek of the Pittsburgh amateur hockey Yellow Jackets.

Jim Braddock No Longer Utters Canned Speeches

Jim Braddock no longer utters canned speeches. The heavyweight champion's manager finally has let the big fellow be himself, and his after-dinner speeches now are rated with the best.

That scrimmage which threatened to develop into a fierce war for control of turf-sheet and racing wire privileges has been settled to the satisfaction of all belligerents. The long-reigning group still is in control and the ambitious rivals are in no danger of starving. . . . Mickey Walker, his brother Joe, and John Hall staged a swell show for the Red Cross in the Elizabeth, N. J., armory. Another occasion when a home-town boy made good. . . . John McGraw had a standing offer of $500 to any Giant who could get Moose McCormick, greatest of pinch-hitters and now a successful insurance man, to take a drink.

Sueo Ohe, the Japanese pole vaulter, uses a pole only 12½ feet long to vault 14 feet 3 inches. But before taking off he measures the distance with a 15-foot pole. . . . Earl Meadows, the Olympic pole-vault champion, flutters his wrists in the concert-pianist manner a few times before his own takeoffs. Does it to stimulate his blood and strengthen his wrists, he says. . . . Vic Ripley, a wiry 155-pounder when he left the Rangers three years ago, now totes 182 pounds around with him on the New Haven ice. . . . Charlie Muldaur, former Princeton quarterback and baseball captain, is doing a swell job for a sports magazine.

Athletes perturbed over after-dinner speeches or literary chores should be pleased to note that the N. Y. classified telephone directory lists two firms under the heading "Ghost Writers." . . . The first game the Giants lose during the coming season will be number 3,000 for them. They have won 3,922 and thus have an average of .567 since entering the league in 1883. . . . The way to tell whether hockey players really are in earnest during those ice fights is to note whether they take off their gloves. You can't form a proper fist with the gloves on. . . . Now if anybody could find some accurate way of proving when prizefighters are bearing down every thing would be oke.

Bill McKee, Bee manager, and Lena Blackburne, A's coach, are the only two survivors of the old Federal league in the majors today. . . . St. Mary's college financial statement for 1936 is said to have included this notation: Baseball expenses, $2.65.

GOLDEN GATE EXPO TAKES FORM

"World's Fair of Western America" Will Rise on Man-Made Isle Now Nearly Completed; Said to Have First Ideal Plan.

Artist's conception of the finished Golden Gate International exposition in 1939. Oakland is in the foreground, San Francisco in the background, the San Francisco-Oakland bridge at the left, the Golden Gate bridge at top center and the fair on the island in the bay.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

THE largest island ever created by man is rising in San Francisco bay under the shadow of the two great new bridges there. Flat and barren now, and a little lonely but for the government workmen and the dredges, it will two years from today glow with the beauty and hum with the activity of the "world's fair of western America"—the 1939 Golden Gate International exposition.

This exposition, the first to be held in the bay area since the famed Panama-Pacific exposition, whose exquisite beauty enthralled some 14,000,000 visitors in 1915, expects to concede nothing in the way of beauty and interest to the old fair, and is confident of outdrawing it in attendance. Claims now are that 20,000,000 visitors will be attracted during the 288 days from February 18 to December 2, 1939. A fifty percent increase in population in the western states, as well as vast improvements in transportation since 1915 form a basis, in part, for these claims.

The Panama-Pacific exposition celebrated the opening of the Panama canal; the Golden Gate exposition will also commemorate new and important developments in transportation and communication—the world's two largest bridges, the trans-Pacific and transcontinental air routes, the network of western highways and streamlined rail services, and the progress in the arts and sciences of moving pictures, radio and television.

First to conceive the 1939 exposition was its dynamic president, Leland S. Cutler, San Francisco insurance man. It was his efforts, largely, which obtained the federal grants that made possible the building of the two bridges and, later, the construction of Exposition island. He has been ably supplemented by his assistant, Howard Freeman, whose work in securing important exhibitors has been especially notable.

World's Longest Span.

So stupendous in size and so magnificent in setting are the two new bridges that, especially for the traveler whose home is in the interior of the country, they in themselves are worthy of a visit to the Coast.

One of them, the San Francisco-Oakland bridge, is already carrying its burden of traffic across the bay, having been opened last November. Built at a cost of $77,000,000, this gigantic structure is eight and one-fourth miles long. In reality it is a series of bridges from Frisco to Yerba Buena island and thence across to Oakland. Its double-decked six-lane highway takes care of automobile as well as interurban train traffic. It may be said to go far under the earth and far above it, for the bridge, by means of the world's largest vehicular bore, tunnels through Yerba Buena, and the towers over the bay are 520 feet above the water, higher than the city's skyscrapers. Some of the foundations lie more than 200 feet below the level of the bay, and required construction engineering methods never before employed.

The Golden Gate bridge, not yet completed, rises out of the presidio to project the world's largest suspension span out over the open sea—the only bridge of its kind in the world. The great span, 4,200 feet long, is 700 feet longer than that of the celebrated George Washington bridge in New York. It joins San Francisco with Marin county and the famed "Redwood empire" to the north. Its 746-foot towers are the tallest structures west of New York. When completed, the bridge will have cost $35,000,000.

The island where the exposition will lie is being created over Yerba Buena shoals, off the island of that name. It is now about three-fourths completed; the last shovelful of the 20,000,000 cubic yards of fill will go in by August 1. Work began about a year ago, when United States army dredges began filling in the site.

Finest World's Fair Plan.

The exposition area will be over a mile long and about two-thirds of a mile wide, covering about as much ground as Chicago's Century of Progress exposition. Around it is being constructed a 16,000-foot seawall, using 220,000 tons of rock to protect the grounds from the waves of the bay.

By building its own site, the administration of the fair manages to avoid many of the evils which have confronted other expositions. Indeed Col. J. Franklin Bell, executive vice-president, says, "This is the first world's fair to have an ideal general plan."

Colonel Bell points out that the plans for other world's fairs have had to be adjusted to fit irregularly shaped sites with resulting loss of symmetry, balance and beauty. Many of these sites, he says, have been encumbered with permanent incongruous features which could not be made to fit into the general exposition plan harmoniously; that such sites have frequently been surrounded by ugly grounds and structures which detracted from the architectural, lighting and color effects.

Soon the fairyland city will be approaching 2,000,000 in population and, for most of these people, will be easy of access. A six lane highway and ferries from San Francisco and Oakland will carry the traffic. Vessels of the nations of the world will anchor nearby.

From whatever direction it is approached the fair will appear in the heart of a scene of extravagant beauty, with the bridges and the Golden Gate in plain view. The grounds themselves will be beautified by $500,000 worth of trees, shrubs and flowers.

Entertainment Values Sought.

The countries bordering the Pacific, and the eleven western states have been invited to exhibit, and there are already indications that many will. The international exhibits will be placed around a Lake of Nations, with the United States government building and those of the states adjoining. To date twelve states and British Columbia have pledged their co-operation.

"Visitors will be able to reach any part of the grounds quickly and with little fatigue," Colonel Bell predicts.

Colonel Bell's plan has provided for a great historical pageant adjacent to the amusement zone, an arising from Exposition island. The first buildings under construction are a $715,000 airport terminal and two hangars costing $400,000 apiece. The former will be used as an administration building during the exposition and the latter as exhibit buildings. When the fair is over the site will become a metropolitan airport for both land planes and the far-cruising "clipper ships," and will be one of the four or five finest in the world.

Fair Easy of Access.

Also scheduled for construction during 1937 are four ferry slips, a ferry terminal, five major exhibit "palaces" and the paving of roadways. All this will cost $4,200,000, of which $2,315,285 is being paid by the exposition company and the remainder furnished by a PWA allocation. The entire fair, when completed, is expected to be a $40,000,000 project. Of this amount $6,250,000 has been provided by the United States government through WPA and PWA grants and $7,500,000 is being raised through private subscription. The remainder will be provided through admissions, exhibits, construction of exhibit buildings and concessions.

The fair will lie in the geographical center of a metropolitan area extravaganza of greater scope than the famed "Wings of a Century" at the Chicago fair. Parades and spectacles will have a prominent place in the bill of fare.

"This fair will follow no plan of any previous fair," Colonel Bell explains. "Entertainment rather than exhibitions will be the objective. The stress will be on recreation and social relations instead of on manufactured products."

The plan calls for a double row of exhibit palaces, running on two axes, at right angles, with a large lagoon and tower on the eastern edge of the site. The exhibit palaces will be entirely artificially lighted and air-conditioned. All courts and areas in which visitors will congregate will be in the lee of the high walls of the buildings. Illumination, upon which $500,000 is being spent, promises to be spectacular.

Exposition authorities consider the areas around the lagoon ideally suited to the features allocated to that area—playgrounds, sports and wild life and musical programs. Along the axes of the plan will be the formal gardens, the ornamental features, and the reflecting pools and fountains.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wise to neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

THE FARMER SEES A STRANGE SIGHT

THE farmer who had made friends with Billy Mink had watched Billy disappear through the hole beneath the shed of the farmhouse. He had chuckled as he saw the tip of Billy's tail disappear. You see, it was to get Billy over to the house that he had made friends with Billy.

You remember that for days the farmer had placed food for Billy close to the woodpile under which Billy was living. On this particular morning he had tied a big piece of fish to a string and then had dragged it from the place where he usually left Billy's meals over to the hole under the shed. There he had left the piece of fish. When Billy had come out from under the woodpile for his breakfast, there had been no breakfast there. But it hadn't taken him long to find the trail of that piece of fish where it had been dragged over the ground, and with his wonderful nose he had followed the trail straight over to the hole under the shed.

Now you know the farmer's house was overrun with rats, the rats Billy Mink had driven out of the barn. The farmer hoped that if he could get Billy over to the house he would follow those rats and drive them out just as he had driven them out of the barn. That is why the farmer chuckled when he saw Billy Mink disappear through that hole under the floor of the shed.

For a long time the farmer kept watch, but he was disappointed. Nothing happened. You see, Billy Mink, having eaten a hearty breakfast, had curled up for a nap under the floor of the shed. The farmer didn't know this, and so at last he concluded that somehow Billy Mink had slipped out unseen. "I did hope that little brown rascal would drive those rats out," muttered the farmer as he went about his work.

It was some time later in the day that the farmer went to the barn door and glanced over toward the house. Then it was that he saw a strange sight, a very strange sight, indeed. Out from that hole through which Billy Mink had entered came a crowd of rats. There were big rats, little rats and middle-sized rats. There were gray old grand-father rats, and sleek young rats. Never had the farmer seen so many rats at one time.

And it was plain to see that those rats were in a terrible fright. They were squeaking and squealing with fear, and every one of them was running as fast as he could. They scattered in all directions. Some made for the big barn, some made for the woodpile, some made for the henhouse, and others started off straight toward the next farm, in spite of the snow on the ground. The farmer shouted aloud for joy. He knew that there wouldn't be one rat left in that house by the time Billy Mink came out.

First Aid to the Ailing House

EXPOSED WOOD PORCHES

A PART of a house that sooner or later is almost certain to give trouble is an open wood porch. As porches are usually built, even the best of floor paint will not last for more than a year or two, and wood steps and their supports are likely to rot where they rest on the earth. Water soaking into cracks between floor boards and under the edges of a porch also leads to rotting.

In building a new porch or in making repairs, this damage can be largely offset through the use of proper materials and methods. Some kinds of wood are much more resistant to rotting than others. Two of these rot-resistant woods are redwood and cypress. One or the other should be used for the steps and other parts that are in contact with the earth. Heavy painting with creosote will protect any kind of wood from rotting.

All of the wood used in building an open porch should be "back-painted"; that is, all parts, backs and edges, should be given a coat of paint as a protection against moisture. Any kind of good paint can be used; aluminum paint is excellent, and so is white lead thinned with linseed oil to the consistency of thick paint.

In laying the floor, which is usually made of tongue-and-groove strips, the strips should be driven tightly together. As the joints are filled with paint, they will be closely bound, and cracks between boards are not likely to develop. Built in this way, floor paint will last for several seasons instead of but one or two. The failure of paint on the floor of an open porch is due to the soaking of water into cracks between boards. The wood absorbs the moisture, which on dry and hot days is drawn out through the top surface of the boards. It is this that loosens floor paint, and the board prevented from shrinking, this effect cannot take place.

The bottoms of porch columns should be so finished that water cannot collect under them. They can be bedded in white lead, and further protected by strips of quarter-round or other molding, also laid in white lead.

The joints between the ends of porch railings and the columns or other parts that support them should be treated in the same way. Very commonly these joints open, and there will be rotting as water soaks in. Should these open joints appear, they should be packed with white lead, calking compound, or something similar. With such precautions, repairs to a porch can be averted almost indefinitely.

HOW HE HELPED

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HIS father bought a sugar bush Back in the days when land was cheap. Of course, 'twas wrong of him to push Himself above his neighbors, keep An eye upon a rainy day, And worst of all to put away A little for his youngster, too, When times get bad, as times will do.

And yet he did, and then he died And left the maples to his son, And past the place I often ride. (It's out on Rural Number One.) That sugar bush his father bought Turned out about the way he thought, Has been enough, with what he had, To keep the youngster of that dad.

I realize it's wrong to save, The newer name for thrift is greed, And that old farmer in his grave Should be condemned, condemned indeed.

And yet I rather hesitate To do it—I have thought of late That when that sugar bush was grown He saved for others than his own.

Upon the poor-list you will find No mention of that son of his, Though other farmers feel the grind

Of taxes for some man who is. He saved a little for his son, But he was not the only one, He served his neighborhood the best.

THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR HAND

By Leicester K. Davis
© Public Ledger, Inc.

THE fingers, like the thumb, hold many a startling revelation of the inner self. These become clear as the printed pages of a book to those who learn to read them right. Each finger has its own significance which must be studied as a separate element, much as you have determined the indications given by the thumb.

What the Fingers Signify.

Finger analysis begins with the phases of personality represented by each, as shown by the accompanying illustration.

The general rules governing analysis of the thumb apply. When analyzing a finger, have thoroughly fixed in mind the qualities of temperament it stands for. Next determine its type from form and length and flexibility. Examine the contour of the finger as a whole, noting whether it is of square or tapered type, whether smooth or irregular, whether bony or well fleshed. And particularly note the length in relation to the lengths of the other fingers, as well as the relative lengths of the finger and that of the palm upon which it is set.

Memorize the meaning of each finger: The first, or index, finger represents power, purpose, progress. The second, the quality and kind of thought. The third, brilliancy and fame. The fourth, the psychic and idealistic qualities of the mind.

Experiences of Life—

Their Significant Interest and Some Ways to Meet Them

THE journey through life is filled with experiences from the time we are born to the day we die. Without them life would be dull and uninteresting. The more experiences are crowded into our lives the fuller and more interesting they become.

When we are in the midst of events that have elements of danger or when they are of momentous proportions with matters at stake that may be disastrous,

There is no age limit to the series of experiences.

Learning by Experience.

The benefits of our life experiences come through our way of taking them, and on our wisdom of decisions when these require our consideration. If we think of ourselves only we become selfish, hard, and difficult. If we decide with a larger vision of results, and of the best good to others as well as to ourselves, we become fine and strong characters. By the exercise of good judgment and by making the best of things we learn to develop well by experiences.

Seabiscuit, leading candidate for the stake championship of 1937 on the American turf, headlined a nine-car special which arrived at Tanforan Wednesday morning from Santa Anita. The special contained the crack stables of Charles S. Howard, Seagram Stable, Long Run Stable, Paul Kelley, Frank Carraud, A. B. Spreckels, Charles E. Perkins and Cox & Ketchum.

Seabiscuit, victorious in the closing stake at Santa Anita last Saturday, shipped in perfect style, according to Tom Smith, who developed the 4-year-old champion for Charles S. Howard, San Francisco sportsman.

Three engagements at Tanforan are planned for the "Biscuit." He will be nominated for the $2500 added Kings Mountain Handicap, March 20, at one mile and a sixteenth; the $5000 added Exposition Handicap, April 10, at one mile and a sixteenth, and the $10,000 added Marchbank Handicap, April 17, at one mile and an eighth.

Seabiscuit was flanked by the sprint star, Exhibit, which will go postward Saturday in the $2500 added Inaugural Handicap, opening fixture of the 25-day spring meeting.

The Seagram Stable, in charge of Frank Gilpin, brought a formidable array of horses, including the stakes winner, Stand Pat, and the English stars, Movie Man, Arabian Myth and Sweet Polly. Gilpin also has Tempestuous for Mrs. Thomas Stevenson.

Other topline horses to get in were Frank Carraud's War Glory and Time Supply, although the latter won't race until next fall; Long Run's Stable's Marynell and Dol-

SEE for yourself THE RIGHT AND WRONG OF LAMPS AND LIGHT!

RIGHT . . . At a distance of 1 1/2 feet from this lamp a minimum of 20 units of light are produced. This quantity of light scientists say is needed for reading fine print.

WRONG . . . A decorative lamp of low height and narrow shade. At a distance of 1 1/2 feet—the correct seeing distance—only a few units of light are produced. Such a lamp causes eyestrain.

Without cost to you a P. G. & E. sales-service representative will gladly check your home lighting with a Sight Meter

NOW you can have a lamp designed for eye comfort as well as ornamental and decorative beauty. It is the lamp designed by the Illuminating Engineering Society to meet the need of Better Light for Better Sight. Due to remarkable improvements in design, this lamp is unlike the many ordinary lamps you may now have in your home or have seen for sale on the bargain counters.

Here are four good reasons why these radically different lamps give you more light for your money and protect the eyesight of every child, youth or adult who uses them for reading, study or sewing.

It gives several times as much light as the ordinary lamp because the shade is wide at the bottom and open at the top and gives light a chance to spread over a wider area.

It gives soft, diffused light without glare because of its inside opal glass diffuser and reflector.

It gives light from correct height because the standard is high enough to allow light to spread where you need it.

It gives beauty and decoration because more symmetrical proportions between shade and standard are possible.

Protect your eyes and the eyes of your family with one of these new lamps. They are made in either floor or table models. Prices are very moderate and within the range of everyone.

Relief Committee In Regular Meeting

The San Mateo County relief committee held its regular meeting on Saturday, February 27. Also present were Dr. Charles C. Gans, director of public health and welfare, and Mr. Adrian F. Ward, superintendent of social welfare, who requested additional funds to continue projects now in operation in these departments. Due to the fact that these departments are understaffed and without funds, their operations would be seriously interfered with, these requests were granted by the relief committee to the end of this fiscal year, with the understanding that adequate provision will be made in the new budget.

The committee has supplied workers from the relief rolls, certified by the State Relief Administration, entailing an expenditure of $4,708.99, covering a period of approximately eighteen months.

The Curse of Progress

A Fatherly Fear

"I'm afraid my boy Josh'll never make a farmer," said Mr. Corn-tossel.

"Why?"

"He's too refined. He wants to discourage an insect pest by stand-in' off an' callin' it Latin names, instead of bein' coarse an' uncompromisin' an' hittin' it with a hand-ful o' paris green."

Roughly Spoken

The woman motorist had given her evidence with an abundance of superficial detail.

"Now tell me," asked the magistrate, "when you knocked down this man, what was his attitude, roughly speaking?"

"It was," answered the woman.

The Dog

"Why is it that you encourage all your clerks to get married?"

"Well," replied the knowing boss, "I find that married men are not in such an awful rush to get home early as single men."—Wall Street Journal.

Why Fear Motherhood?

Mrs. M. E. Gerike, Box 779, San Bernardino, Cal., said: "Before my first child came I was afraid I could not go on. I dreaded motherhood. My mother advised Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a tonic and in no time my appetite was better. THE GARDEN MURDER CASE

SYNOPSIS

Philo Vance, famous detective, and John F. X. Markham, district attorney for New York county are dining in Vance's apartment when Vance receives an anonymous telephone message informing him of a "disturbing psychological tension at Professor Ephraim Garden's apartment" advising that he read up on radio-active sodium, consult a passage in the Aeneid and counseling that "Equanimity is essential." Professor Garden is famous in chemical research. The message, decoded by Vance, reminds him that Professor Garden's son, Floyd, and his puny cousin, Woodie Swift, are addicted to horse-racing. Vance says that "Equanimity" is a horse running next day in the Rivermont handicap. Vance is convinced that the message was sent by Dr. Siefert, the Gardens' family physician. He arranges to have lunch next day at the Gardens' penthouse. Vance is greeted by Floyd Garden and meets Lowe Hammie, an elderly follower of horse racing. Floyd expresses concern over Swift's queer actions. Mrs. Garden, supposedly ill, comes downstairs and places a $100 bet on a horse. Gathered around an elaborate loud speaker service, listening to the racing are Cecil Kroon, Madge Weatherby and Zalia Graem, who bet varying amounts on the race. There is tension under the surface gaiety. Zalia and Swift are not on speaking terms. Kroon leaves to keep an appointment before the race starts. Miss Beeton, a nurse, and Vance bet on "Azure Star." Swift recklessly bets $10,000 on "Equanimity" and goes to the roof garden to hear the results. Floyd follows Swift, remaining away several minutes. Zalia Graem answers a phone call in the den. Soon after the announcement that "Azure Star" wins, the guests hear a shot. Vance finds Swift dead, shot through the head with a revolver. After calling the police, he finds the door of a vault ajar. Kroon returns and is sharply questioned by Vance, who finds he had not left the building. Vance orders Miss Beeton to guard the stairway and prevent Mrs. Garden and Zalia from viewing Swift's body. Floyd Garden admits the revolver belongs to his father. Further questioning by Vance reveals that the revolver had been found recently by Zalia in the presence of the other guests. Floyd hints that Swift bet so recklessly because of Zalia. Markham, Sergeant Heath and two detectives arrive. Markham and Sergeant Heath scorn the murder theory.

Markham meditated on this for several moments.

"Still, Vance," he said at length, "reasonable objections could be raised to all the points you have brought up. They are based almost entirely on theory and not on demonstrable facts."

"From a legal point of view, you're right," Vance conceded. "And if these had been my only reasons for believing that a crime had been committed, I wouldn't have summoned you and the doughty sergeant. But, even so, Markham, I can assure you the few drops of blood you see on the chapie's temple could not have thickened to the extent they had when I first saw the body—they must have been exposed to the air for several minutes. And, as I say, I was up here approximately thirty seconds after we heard the shot."

"But that being the case," returned Markham in astonishment, "how can you possibly explain the fact?"

Vance straightened a little and looked at the district attorney with unwonted gravity.

"Swift," he said, "was not killed by the shot we heard."

"That don't make sense to me, Mr. Vance," Heath interposed, scowling.

"Just a moment, Sergeant," Vance nodded to him in friendly fashion. "When I realized that the shot that wiped out this johnnie's existence was not the shot that we had heard, I tried to figure out where the fatal shot could have been fired without our hearing it below. And I've found the place. It was in a vault-like store-room—practically sound-proof, I should say—on the other side of the passageway that leads to the study. I found the door unlocked and looked for evidence of some activity there."

Markham had risen and taken a few nervous steps around the pool in the center of the roof.

"Did you find any evidence," he asked, "to corroborate your theory?"

"Yes—unmistakable evidence," Vance walked over to the still figure in the chair and pointed to the thick-lensed glasses tipped forward on the nose. "To begin with, Markham, you will notice that Swift's glasses are in a position far from normal, indicating that they were put on hurriedly and inaccurately by someone else—just as was the head-plate."

Markham and Heath leaned over and peered at the glasses.

"Well, Mr. Vance," agreed the sergeant, "they certainly don't look as if he had put 'em on himself."

Markham straightened up, compressed his lips, and nodded slowly. "All right," he said; "what else?"

"Perpend, Markham," Vance pointed with his cigarette. "The left lens of the glasses—the one furthest from the punctured temple—is cracked and the corner, and there's a very small V-shaped piece missing where the crack begins—an indication that the glasses have been dropped and nicked. I can assure you that the lens was neither cracked nor nicked when I last saw Swift alive."

"Couldn't he have dropped his glasses on the roof here?" asked Heath.

"Possible of course, Sergeant," Vance returned. "But he didn't. I carefully looked over the tiles round the chair, and the missing bit of glass was not there."

Markham looked at Vance shrewdly.

"And perhaps you know where it is."

"Yes—oh, yes," Vance nodded. "That's why I urged you to come here. That piece of glass is at present in my waistcoat pocket."

Markham showed a new interest. "Where did you find it?" he demanded brusquely.

"I found it," Vance told him, "on the tiled floor in the vault across the hall. And it was near some scattered papers which could easily have been knocked to the floor by some one falling against them."

Markham's eyes opened incredulously.

"I'm beginning to see why you wanted me and the sergeant here," he said slowly. "But what I don't understand, Vance, is that second shot that you heard. How do you account for it?"

Vance drew deeply on his cigarette.

"Markham," he answered, with quiet seriousness; "when we know how and by whom that second shot—which was obviously intended for us to hear—was fired, we will know who murdered Swift."

At this moment the nurse appeared in the doorway leading to the roof. With her was Doctor Doremus, and behind the medical examiner were Captain Dubois and Detective Bellamy, the finger-print men, and Peter Quackenbush, the official police photographer.

Miss Beeton indicated our presence on the roof and made her way back downstairs.

Doremus acknowledged our joint greetings with a breezy wave of the hand.

He made a cursory examination of the limp figure, scrutinized the bullet hole, tested the arms and legs for rigor mortis, and then swung about to face the rest of us.

"Well, what about it?" he asked, in his easy cynical manner. "He's dead; shot in the head with a small-caliber bullet; and the lead's probably lodged in the brain. No exit hole. Looks as if he'd decided to shoot himself. There's nothing here to contradict the assumption. The bullet went into the temple, and is at the correct angle. Furthermore, there are powder marks, showing that the gun was held at very close range—almost a contact wound. I should say. There's an indication of singeing around the orifice."

Vance took the cigarette from his mouth and addressed Doremus.

"I say doctor; speakin' of the blood on the johnnie's temple, what would you say about the amount?"

"Two damned little, I'd say," Doremus returned promptly. "But bullet wounds have a queer way of acting sometimes. Anyway, there ought to be a lot more gore."

"Precisely," Vance nodded. "My theory is that he was shot elsewhere and brought to this chair."

Doremus made a wry face. "Was shot? Then you don't think it was suicide?" He pondered a moment. "It could be, of course," he decided finally. "Find the rest of the blood and you'll probably know where his death occurred."

"Thanks awfully, doctor," Vance smiled faintly. "That did flash through my mind, don't y' know; but I believe the blood 's wiped up. I was merely hopin' that your findings would substantiate my theory that he did not shoot himself while sitting in that chair, without any one else around."

Doremus shrugged indifferently. "That's reasonable enough assumption," he said. "There really ought to be more blood. He died instantly."

"Have you any other suggestions?" asked Vance.

"I may have when I've gone over the body more carefully after these babies"—he waved his hand toward the photographer and the finger-print men—"finish their hocus-pocus."

Captain Dubois and Detective Bellamy had already begun their routine, with the telephone table as the starting-point; and Quackenbush was adjusting his metal tripod.

Vance turned to Dubois. "I say,

Captain, give your special attention to the head-plate, the revolver, and the glasses. Also the door-knob of the vault across the hall inside."

Quackenbush, his camera having been set up, took his pictures and then waited by the passageway door for further instructions from the finger-print officers.

When the three men had gone inside, Doremus drew in an exaggerated sigh and spoke to Heath impatiently.

"How about getting your corpus delicti over on the settee? Easier to examine him there."

"O. K., Doc."

Two detectives lifted Swift's limp body and placed it on the same wicker divan where Zalia Graem had lain when she collapsed at the sight of the dead man.

Doremus went to work in his usual swift and efficient fashion. When he had finished the task, he threw a steamer rug over the dead man, and made a brief report to Vance and Markham.

"There's nothing to indicate a violent struggle, if that's what you're hoping for. But there's a slight abrasion on the bridge of the nose, as if his glasses had been jerked off; and there's a slight bump on the left side of his head, over the ear, which may have been caused by a blow of some kind, though the skin hasn't been broken."

"How, doctor," asked Vance, "would the following theory square with your findings—that the man had been shot elsewhere, had fallen to a tiled floor, striking his head against it sharply, that his glasses had been torn off when the left lens came in contact with the floor, and that he was carried out here to the chair, and the glasses replaced on his nose?"

Doremus pursed his lips and inclined his head thoughtfully.

"That would be a very reasonable explanation of the lump on his head and the abrasion on the bridge of his nose. . . . So this is another of your cock-eyed murders, is it? Well, it's all right with me. But I'll tell you right now, you won't get an autopsy report tonight. I'm bored and need excitement; and I'm going to Madison Square Garden."

He made out an order for the removal of the body, readjusted his hat, waved a friendly good-by which included all of us, and disappeared swiftly through the door into the passageway.

Vance led the way into the study, and the rest of us followed him. We were barely seated when Captain Dubois came in and reported that there were no finger-prints on any of the objects Vance had enumerated.

"Handled with gloves," he finished laconically, "or wiped clean."

Vance thanked him. "I'm not in the least surprised," he added.

Dubois rejoined Bellamy and Quackenbush in the hall, and the three made their way down the stairs.

"Well, Vance, are you satisfied?" Markham asked.

Vance nodded. "I hadn't expected any fingerprints. Cleverly thought-out crime. And what Doremus found fills some vacant spots in my own theory. Stout fella, Doremus, understands his business. He knows what is wanted and looks for it. There can be no question that Swift was in the vault when he was shot; that he fell to the floor, brushing down some of the papers; that he struck his head on the tiled floor, and broke the left lens of his glasses—you noted, of course, that the lump on his head is also on the left side—and that he was dragged into the garden and placed in the chair. Swift was a small, slender man; probably didn't weigh over a hundred and twenty pounds; and it would have been no great feat of strength for someone to have transported him after death."

There were footsteps in the corridor and, as our eyes involuntarily turned toward the door, we saw the dignified elderly figure of Professor Ephraim Garden. I recognized him immediately from pictures I had seen.

He was a tall man, despite his stooped shoulders; and, though he was very thin, he possessed a firmness of bearing which made one feel that he had retained a great measure of the physical power that had obviously been his in youth. There was benevolence in the somewhat haggard face, but there was also shrewdness in his gaze; and the contour of his mouth indicated a latent hardness.

He bowed to us with an old-fashioned graciousness and took a few steps into the study.

"My son has just informed me," he said in a slightly querulous voice, "of the tragedy that has occurred here this afternoon. I'm sorry that I did not return home earlier, as is my wont on Saturdays, for in that event the tragedy might have been averted. I myself would have been in the study here and would probably have kept an eye on my nephew. In any event, no one could then have got possession of my revolver."

"I am not at all sure, Doctor Garden," Vance returned grimly, "that your presence here this afternoon would have averted the tragedy. It is not nearly so simple a matter as it appears at first glance."

Professor Garden sat down in a chair of antique workmanship near the door and, clasping his hands tightly, leaned forward.

Well-Dressed at Little Cost

IT WAS some job, Ladies of The Sewing Circle, to get these three lovelies together to pose for the camera this week. They're under the strict tutelage of Dame Fashion just now, learning the latest lessons on how to be well turned out this Spring without benefit of a private mint. You can understand, then, why the co-ed above, center, sort of jumped the gun, so to speak, and was already on her way when the camera clicked.

A Frock That Clicks.
Speaking of things clicking, don't think that new princess gown she's wearing isn't doing it in a big way. Can't you see from where you're sitting that it is simple to sew besides being a figure-flatterer of the first order? The buttons half way and a neat little collar in contrast are all its lively lines need to complete the perfect balance—chic vs. simplicity. Take a tip from this stylish student and figure it out for yourself in cashmere or velveteen. The style is 1202 and it can be had in sizes 12-20 (30-38). Size 14 requires 4 3/4 yards of 39 inch material plus 3/4 yard contrasting.

Go Print for Spring.
The charming young lady above, left, has chosen to model a very dainty and rather picturesque little frock for she believes you'll be interested in this style as a fitting gesture to Springtime. Especially in a modern print, featuring, say, pussycats or deep-sea flowers, would this frock be tempting. The skirt is bias-cut for artistic reasons, and the circles of contrast aid and abet its gracefulness. Let yourself go print then, come Spring. Style 1257 is designed in sizes 12-20 (30-40 bust). Size 14 requires 4 3/4 yards of 39 inch material. Eleven yards of bias binding is required for trimming as pictured.

Gay House or Street Frock.
Lest you begin to think every day is Sunday for our starring trio, the trim-looking young lady above, right, wants you to concentrate now on her new gingham gown. Not an ordinary bread-and-butter cotton version, but a beautifully cut, carefully planned dress for general service. The linked button front is enough to give it first place on your Spring giving list if Sew-Your-Own designers know their clients as well as they think. However, there's more to recommend it: a young becoming collar, a simple yoke-and-sleeve-in-one construction, and a slender action-built skirt. Put them all together they spell CHIC—that little word with a vast meaning. Style 1267 is for sizes 34-48. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 35 inch material plus 1 1/4 yards contrasting.
